

A Blind Applause

They clapped for her
For the way she made them smile
They dressed her the finest dresses and clothing lines
They loved her
For the emotions her melody brought into them
But they didn't know that
While they clapped
She was dying in front of them
While they dressed her
They covered her so many scars
And while they loved her melody
Her voice ached

